What I'm doing right now is JSON.stringify() the results and send it to AJAX. But it only shows the last result. I want it to show all. I'm sure there is a better way. A: Simplest of them all! if (mysql_num_rows($results) > 0) { $row = mysql_fetch_assoc($results); // $row = mysql_fetch_array($results); // if using mysql_fetch_array() $output = json_encode(array('total' => $row['num'])); } I'm assuming you know the exact structure of $output, hence your JSON doesn't need to be nested. EDIT: if you don't have this PHP string... $results = "SELECT num FROM users WHERE role = '1'"; change it to this: $results = "SELECT * FROM users WHERE role = '". $role . "'"; or $results = "SELECT * FROM users WHERE role = '".mysql_real_escape_string($role)."'"; Here's a good resource on MySQL Encryption and Escaping: A: If you want to use the returned data of a query as an array,
