NanoVideo Fireworks is a vector graphics animation tool, allowing you to produce high quality, interactively generated effects for use in Powerpoint, HTML, or any other program that supports vector images. Unique to Fireworks are the Smart Guides that are used to position and resize objects. These guides are created by the software itself and are neither a static guide or a "zoom to fit" type of automatic resize. With zero programming knowledge, you can create animations that use all of the unique features of Fireworks, including using a pre-made library of graphics, shapes, and objects, or import from other Fireworks files. Watch PCPowerClock is a utility to display the time in a custom color to offer a neat and clean look on the desktop. You can choose from color themes, create your own, and save them to the system registry. To reduce the computer's clock speed and lower its power consumption, you can also set options to suspend the computer when idle. User's manual for FreePaint FreePaint is a simple paint program that is easy to use. It provides a realistic and low-cost way to work with colors. Squid is a free source based proxy server, built using the python language.

Squid offers a quick and easy way to compress web traffic. By default Squid is tuned to the needs of software developers, you can change that to give you the best performance, with different configurations giving different types of results.
