Creating a Web Server with Linux for Dummies. <http://freegamesmon.com/download/SolarWinds-orion-Network-Performance-Monitor-V10-Crack-Patch-Included.rar>A retired New York City police detective who was accused of sexually abusing two teenage boys as a teen has been acquitted of third-degree sodomy and sexual abuse. Joseph Bongiorno, 48, testified he was only "noting down the address of a new client" at the time in 2004 when he encountered one of the boys, and that he advised him not to tell anyone. He was acquitted of third-degree sodomy, but convicted of sexual abuse. Bongiorno, now 53, was accused of groping the teen, touching him inappropriately and forcing him to perform oral sex. He testified that he accidentally grabbed the teen and never intended to do anything inappropriate with him, while the teen testified that he was upset that Bongiorno was taking down his address. A Brooklyn judge rejected the defense's argument that Bongiorno's memory was impaired at the time of the alleged misconduct. The detectives union said Bongiorno, who retired in 2012 after more than 25 years on the job, had been punished enough for his crime. Get Breaking News Delivered to Your Inbox "We're obviously surprised. Joseph Bongiorno was a model employee. He was dedicated to his work as a detective," said Detective Eddie Joseph of the Brooklyn Detectives Endowment Association. "We believe, ultimately, this is vindication of a good detective." The union statement said that Bongiorno will return to work. The union says it will be pressing the city's Law Department to try to get the conviction for sodomy overturned. In an emailed statement, the Law Department called the conviction "a fair and just result" after a "thorough review" by prosecutors and defense lawyers. The department also says the investigation included a review of the case and a "thorough pre-sentence report" that "included significant evidence suggesting the defendant's behavior was aberrant." "The decision is not a statement on the facts of the case or the innocence or guilt of the defendant," it says. "We believe the outcome is an appropriate result in this difficult case." The incident resulted in Bongiorno receiving a 50-50 sentence. However, he chose to remain off-duty for 22 months to fulfill community service orders as part of his punishment. Bongiorno was also forced to retire because of the investigation into his conduct. The unidentified victim, now 31 years old, testified during the trial that when he was 17, he was a teenage runaway from Rhode Island who had come to the Bronx with a friend and needed a place to stay. He said he was housed by the authorities in New York at four different locations and met Bongiorno at one of the last. "I was pretty scared," he told the court. "I was nervous, I didn't know what was gonna happen." He said he went to bed around 10 p.m. but was awoken by an incident the next morning. The detective took him to a nearby park, the victim testified, and the detective told him not to tell anybody about the encounter. "I was like, 'You're crazy,' but I didn't tell anybody," he testified. 5ec8ef588b
