I have heard that many people are struggling with their resumes and cover letters, so I have put this little app together to help with that task. It's very simple, but it has some powerful functions. The First Letter application can help you with writing the first letter of the alphabet for each name that you have in your database. Just select the right cell and write the first letter of each name in a single click. The program will remember all the letters written and when you need to open it again, you can continue your work. Features: -- Alphabetical list (A-Z). -- Appeasable (One mouse click) and customizable interface. -- The application can be installed in the background (It runs in the system tray). -- Saves the data in the registry. -- Up to 80 different names to choose from. -- The KeeFox is a web browser extension. It is made by the same people who created the browser extension Incognito for Chrome. Key Features:

2X faster than other browsers Easy access to bookmarks, searches and site favorites Search using DuckDuckGo Read and post articles from Pocket, Instapaper and Readability See and post images from Instagram and Pinterest Read and post links from Slashdot, Reddit, Hacker News and Delicious View links from Gmail See and post tweets from Twitter See and post news from Google News Identify words in web pages, emails, blog posts and more with Google Save and share the articles you want to read later with Readability Save and share the articles you want to read later with Pocket Save and share the articles you want to read later with Instapaper See which sites and apps other people use in your circles See which sites and apps other people use in your circles Popular news While KeeFox shares similar features with a number of other browsers, it puts a whole new spin on things. It is much faster than other browsers, much more versatile and most importantly, it has a whole new layout. After you install the extension, the screen will display a list of your bookmarks, searches, site favorites and the stuff you read from Pocket, Instapaper and Readability. You can easily drag and drop any link or image from one of those websites to the bookmark panel. Speaking of the bookmarks panel, you can edit them or make new ones through it. The most important one, though, is the search bar. KeeFox makes it possible to search DuckDuckGo, a search engine that uses private and encrypted data to deliver more relevant search results. Simply type in the search field, and you will get relevant results instantly. To see more than just links, KeeFox allows you to see images as well. You can view them directly from the search results or click on the image to access a larger version. If you want to use the toolbar, you can access it from the bookmark panel or the search panel. Another way to access the toolbar is through the Back and Forward buttons. The default settings will have you use the Back button to go back, but you can change it if you prefer the other way around. There are also other buttons on the toolbar, like the Reader Mode button, that makes the browser open the articles you find. Another important feature of KeeFox is the extension's ability to access sites like Pocket, Instapaper and

Readability. You can see the items you read from those websites directly from the website panel, and you can read or share them as well. One of the most popular features of KeeFox is the bookmarks panel. Simply drag the links you want to share with your friends to the panel, then click on the Share button to share
