We also addressed whether the RGL3-mediated carotenoid pathway is responsible for the specific accumulation of carotenoids in tomato fruit. We demonstrated that the expression of carotenoid-related genes in RGL3-overexpressing plants was repressed to the similar level as in the pLAT52:RGL3 fruit (Figure 3{ref-type="fig"}). These findings suggest that RGL3 is involved in the downregulation of carotenoid biosynthetic genes. However, as accumulation of carotenoids, including β -carotene and lutein, in RGL3-overexpressing fruit was somewhat lower than in pLAT52:RGL3 fruit, we cannot rule out the possibility that other regulators, such as ethylene-responsive factors and MY
