"Time and temperature are your best friends" can be an oversimplification of the meat industry's safety plans to eliminate pathogen growth. Gaining consumer confidence in these plans, even with the latest technology, requires cooperative relationships between industry and government/regulatory agencies. The industry can maintain control of its product, know that regulations will be enforced, and have confidence that the products will pass the critical safety tests. This author recognizes that consumers should not be making decisions based solely on a label's expiration date, but also considers the other factors that may be relevant to consumer confidence in the safety of ground beef.

Bio Opitz Brueggemann syndrome, also known as O.B.S. (Opitz-Branchio-Sukhrane syndrome) is a rare but fatal congenital disorder. It is caused by a problem with the production of growth hormones, which affects normal growth and
