Quickly get to any website on the internet using just one click! Macros are a feature of some programs that let you do things automatically, with one simple press of a button, or a mouse click. You could use macros to open documents, view photos, send email, and do lots more. With KeyMacro you can make the macros "do" any web site. Just enter the URL, and KeyMacro does the rest. KeyMacro will open up the website, and then show you a scrollable window where you can then type in the details you need. At any point during the typing you can use the mouse to scroll the contents of the window. KeyMacro will automatically select the correct text, and then enter it into the address bar for you. Note: Your typing won't be copied to the clipboard and pasted automatically when you're done. It's just to get you into a web site as quickly as possible. SUMMARY: + Works with any Web site + Works with any URL + Single click access to your web sites + Quick scrolling + Automatic typing of text + Accessing web sites by typing in the address bar + Automatic selection of text and pasting into the address bar KEYNOTE Description: Get the most out of KeyMacro Use the tool to get into web sites, email addresses, hyperlinks, and many more Get a new and improved KeyMacro experience, and take the hassle out of web site access. .Net Framework 1.1 - Single version with no future updates - No complicated installation and configuration - Low system

Chromium offers a full suite of developer features and the freedom to build great web browsers without constraints, forcing you to build a better browser. Chromium is an open-source project that was started in 2004 as a joint effort between Google and the public. It is written using the Blink web engine and Chromium builds on the V8 virtual machine. Chromium provides a complete set of developer tools for building better, faster, and safer web browsers: □ Chromium is open source and is constantly being improved upon. □ Unlike IE, Chrome uses a sandbox to separate the user's browser data from the OS itself, so no security compromises need be made. □ Unlike other browsers, Chromium supports tabs and multiple windows, allowing a user to switch back and forth between them easily. □ Chrome's code is under active development and is being used by some of the world's most popular websites, such as Twitter, Wikipedia, and Microsoft.

Description: If you need an app for your Mac to import your Windows IMAP email into a local web-based Inbox, then WireDEM is just the app for you. It allows you to import emails from an IMAP mailbox and view the email in a web-based inbox. This app will sync the Inbox with your Windows email system and allow you to access your email on the web anywhere in the world. WireDEM works with your local emails and doesn't require you to have an internet connection to use it. With WireDEM, you can keep all your messages in a web-based inbox and view them without a local computer and without being tied to your internet connection. If you need access to your email on the go, or if you need a way to view your email without needing a computer, this is the app for you.
