Jimmy Kimmel says there's "a growing concern" in the black community "that they're not getting the equal treatment" from law enforcement, which Kimmel at one point implicates to racism. (0:49) Jimmy Kimmel, who went on a tear over the weekend questioning the motives of President Trump and First Lady Melania Trump, hit back at his own hypocrisy on Tuesday night. As the late-night TV host noted, Kimmel, who has regularly railed against Trump and his family on his "Jimmy Kimmel Live" show, had a "black female bodyguard" watching his children at his wife's side while she held a microphone stand as a prop on the show's October 16 episode. That night, Kimmel argued that the Secret Service assigned a black female bodyguard to protect Melania "because she was black and he is racist." "Why does he have a black female bodyguard," Kimmel asked the audience, showing a photograph of the unnamed bodyguard in a deep purple top with matching pants. "It's because she is black. Because he hates black people. Because he thinks it's OK to hang out with white supremacists." "There's a growing concern among law enforcement in the
