FAQs.Q: datatables in html table breaks on the first record - how to pass data in I have a table with a button which hides all records apart from the first record. I've got my button set up like this, but then, on the JS side of things, I need to know what row to be active on the next call. How can I do this? Update: I've tried this, `$('.dt-button').on("click", function () { var currentId = $(this).data('id'); var activeRecord = table.row('.records_table tr:first').data(); if (activeRecord[0] != undefined) { // change the active record to the record with id $('#tablecontainer').dataTable().row('.records_table tr:first').data(activeRecord[0]); } else { // hide the other records table.row('.records_table tr').dataTable().search('records_id').draw(); table.row('.records_table tr').each(function () { if ($(this).data('records_id') != currentId) { $('#' + $(this).data('records_id')).hide();`
