The Truman Show held its world premiere in Los Angeles on June 1, 1998, and was released in North America on June 5. The film was a financial success, debuting to critical acclaim, and earned numerous nominations at the 71st Academy Awards, 56th Golden Globe Awards, 52nd British Academy Film Awards, and 25th Saturn Awards. The Truman Show has been analyzed as an exploration of simulated reality, existentialism, surveillance, religion, metaphilosophy, privacy, and reality television, and described as a genre-blending that features elements of dystopian fiction, metafiction, psychological drama, romantic comedy, satire, and social science fiction. Giving the film a perfect four star score, Roger Ebert compared it to Forrest Gump, claiming that the film had the right balance of comedy and drama. He was also impressed with Jim Carrey's dramatic performance.[41] Kenneth Turan of the Los Angeles Times wrote, "The Truman Show is emotionally involving without losing the ability to raise sharp satiric questions as well as get numerous laughs. The rare film that is disturbing despite working beautifully within standard industry norms." [42] He would name it the best movie of 1998.[43] In June 2010, Entertainment Weekly named Truman one of the 100 Greatest Characters of the Last 20 Years.[44] Aunque por un tiempo la vida de Truman parece haber vuelto a la normalidad tras reencontrarse con su padre y conociendo a una nueva colega de trabajo que Christof ha introducido para que sea su nueva novia. Sin embargo, solo resulta ser un alivio temporal, Truman pronto se aísla y empieza a quedarse solo en su sótano. Una noche, Truman consigue escapar del sótano sin ser detectado a través de un túnel secreto, lo que obliga a Christof a suspender la emisión del show por primera vez en la historia. Esto provoca un aumento de la audiencia, con muchos espectadores (incluyendo a Sylvia), que desean que Truman logre fugarse.
